Rob Greenfield, the renowned environmental activist and author, has written a powerful and inspiring book for children called 'Call to Kids'. This book is a must-read for any child who wants to make a positive impact on the world.

In 'Call to Kids', Greenfield shares his own personal journey of activism and environmentalism. He talks about the challenges he has faced, the mistakes he has made, and the lessons he has learned along the way. But more importantly, he offers kids practical tips and advice on how they can make a difference in their own lives and communities.

The book is filled with real-life stories of kids who are making a difference in the world. There's the story of Xiuhtezcatl Martinez, a 16-year-old climate activist who has spoken at the United Nations. There's the story of Melati Wijsen, a 15-year-old Indonesian girl who founded a movement to ban plastic bags in her country. And there's the story of Emmanuel Cosmos Msoka, a 12-year-old Tanzanian boy who invented a solar-powered water pump for his village.

These stories are inspiring and empowering, and they show kids that they can make a difference, no matter how young they are. Greenfield also provides kids with hands-on activities that they can do to help make the world a better place. There are activities on how to reduce plastic waste, how to grow your own food, and how to conserve water. There are also activities on how to get involved in social justice causes, such as fighting for racial equality or protecting the rights of animals.

'Call to Kids' is a timely and important book. The world is facing a number of challenges, from climate change to poverty to racism. But

Greenfield's book offers kids a message of hope and empowerment. He shows kids that they can make a difference, and he gives them the tools they need to get started.

If you have a child who is passionate about making a difference in the world, then I highly recommend 'Call to Kids'. This book will inspire and empower your child to take action and create positive change.
